

that no service can be impressive unless it is held inside the Cathedral. The police officials complain that the space is too narrow for handling a procession with a mounted escort. Princesses, peers and wives of Members of Parliament and leading officials, who are accustomed to claim the chief seats at great functions, foresee that they will not be privileged spectators. The present plan will not enable either the masses or the classes to witness the thanksgiving service, but it dispenses with many questions of etiquette. The new biography of the Queen will be published on her birthday; it will be an edition de luxe, but will display many illustrations cherished by the masses respecting her childhood. Several stock stories, including the one respecting her study of the royal genealogy and the discovery of her own place in the line of succession, with the remark, "I will be good," are contradicted on the Queen's authority.

The art shows of the Queen's Year are opening. The Institute of Painters in Water Colors exhibits nearly five hundred drawings and introduces an Art Union lottery for the distribution of prizes among the holders of lucky numbers. Some device of this kind is needed to stimulate public interest, for the work on the walls does not reach a high level. With the exception of Sir James Linton and a few other figure painters, the majority of the members of the Institute have formed a habit of repeating themselves. A much better show is that of the Royal Society of Painters and Etchers in Pall Mall. There are 300 etchings, mezzotints, dry points and aquatints in the collection, which reveals a great range of subjects and treatment and is characterized by strength and vital energy. There are fine examples of pure line work and technical skill in getting luminous color effects out of the plate. A representative loan collection of sixty works of James Maris has been opened at the Goupil Gallery. These pictures are remarkable for atmospheric effects and subtle tone and fully sustain the reputation of the Dutch School. The Guildhall loan collection this summer will illustrate the art of the Victorian period and will be unusually interesting.

A large number of relics of "Chinese" Gordon are now exhibited in the old banquet hall at Whitehall. Among them are the yellow jacket uniform, a map used in the Chinese campaign and a full-dress pacha's coat presented by the Khedive.

Millais's house, on which he expended $200,000, has been offered at auction at half price without a bidder. Leighton's house was equally unsalable at auction. Lord Dudley has purchased the mansion in Carlton Gardens, where Lady Walgrave formerly entertained on a large scale. The Archbishop of Canterbury's country house, Addington Park, is also in the market with 500 acres and beautiful scenery; it ought to tempt some South African millionaire, even if art palaces in town go begging.

The forecasts of the opera season are published, and confidence is expressed by the London journals that Covent Garden will be successfully managed by Mr. Maurice Grau. In the list of subscribers Mrs. Bradley's name is conspicuous. The concert season is now at its height. The "Dream Monologue," from Mr. Hubert Parry's oratorio, "King Saul," will be the chief feature of this week's Henschel concert. The composer conducted the music and Mr. Henschel himself sang an important part. Dr. Joachim is playing violin concertos in many halls. The Bohemian Quartet, introduced by Mr. Ernest Courtenay, continues to delight large audiences. Bertha Balthasar, a little girl twelve years old, has played difficult music by Bach on the piano before a large audience in St. James's Hall at a concert given by the Hillier Belgian Quartet.

English comment on the McKinley Administration is suspended until the Tariff bill can be produced. It is a dangerous subject, like the huge English coal combination, controlling the production of 80,000,000 tons, about which nothing is said in the leaders, or like Lord Salisbury's remarks on economics, in which he seemed to deny that the English should insist that they are always right and all other nations invariably wrong.

LORD ROSEBERY BACK IN LONDON.

HE WILL NOT SPEAK ON FOREIGN AFFAIRS UNTIL A CRISIS ARISES.

London, March 12.—Lord Rosebery returned to London yesterday from his trip abroad. He will pay a visit to his estates to take a look at his racehorses, after which he will return to London. He intends to attend the House of Lords, where he will sit on the front Opposition bench, but will strictly refrain from the leadership of the Earl of Kimberley. Lord Rosebery is more inclined to adhere to the concert of Europe than Lord Salisbury, but he will not speak on foreign subjects unless there should be a crisis. His section of the Liberal party is still trying to keep the way open for his return to the leadership, and they have elected his friend Lord Tweedmouth president of the London Radical Union, defeating Henry Labouchere, who is a strong opponent of Lord Rosebery.

London, March 13.—A dispatch from Bloemfontein, the capital of the Orange Free State, says that President Kruger of the State of Africa Republic, who is visiting the Free State, expressed in the course of a speech yesterday his conviction that, in the event of war between the Transvaal Republic and England the Boers would be victorious. NAVAL CREDITS REFUSED.

EMPEROR WILLIAM'S DEMANDS REJECTED BY THE BUDGET COMMITTEE.

RUMORS RENOWNED OF A DISSOLUTION OF THE REICHTAG AND AN APPEAL TO THE COURT.

TRY THE GOVERNMENT'S FRIENDS STILL HOPEFUL OF CARRYING THEIR POINT.

Berlin, March 13.—The Budget Committee of the Reichstag has rejected the Government's demand for an extra credit for the purpose of building two additional cruisers. The committee also rejected the demand of the Government for the grant of 675,000 marks for a torpedo depot-ship and a demand for a credit of 1,600,000 marks for the construction of torpedo-boats. The vote on the former proposition was 15 to 11 and on the latter 16 to 11.

The refusal of the Budget Committee to accept the Government's proposals for grants for the construction of two new cruisers, a torpedo depot-ship and additional torpedo-boats has given rise to renewed rumors of a dissolution of the Reichstag and an appeal to the court by the Government upon the question of augmentation of the strength of the navy. These rumors are denied by those within the Government circle, who say that the Reichstag will be allowed to run to the end of its natural term, and assert that official confidence continues that the Reichstag will yet grant the credits required to meet the outside of the Government's financial year.

The report which was in circulation a few days ago that Admiral Hollmann, the head of the Imperial Admiralty, had resigned arose from the Ministerial dissatisfaction which was freely expressed by his frankness and premature disclosure to the Reichstag of the true aims of the Emperor upon the occasion of his recent speech before the Budget Committee.

The subsequent explanations made to the committee by Prince Hohenlohe were purposely misleading, and were intended to give the Reichstag and the country time to cool off. It is expected that the official dinners which Prince Hohenlohe and the other Ministers will shortly give to the members of the Reichstag will afford an opportunity for the Ministers to work upon a sufficient number of Deputies to cause the Reichstag to concede a portion at least of the credits asked by the Government.

QUEEN VICTORIA'S SOJOURN AT CIMIZ.

THE ROYAL APARTMENTS AT THE EXCELSIOR HOTEL REGINA.

London, March 13.—Queen Victoria, who arrived at Nice yesterday, will live during her sojourn at Cimiza at the Excelsior Hotel Regina. An entire wing of the building has been set apart for the use of the Queen and her attendants. There are about sixty rooms in this wing, which has been completely isolated from the rest of the hotel by a wall running from top to bottom. A special elevator leads to the Queen's apartments, which are on the first floor. Her Majesty's bedroom is furnished in the style of Louis XVI. The sitting-room is furnished with yellow Bourbon paper, light-blue silk curtains and draperies, and furniture of rich mahogany, inlaid, the chairs and settees being covered in light-blue silk. The reception-room is furnished with yellow Empire silk curtains and draperies, the mahogany furniture being mounted with brass and the walls covered with red velvet curtains and draperies. The private dining-room is furnished with red velvet curtains and draperies. A conference room runs along the top of the building, where Her Majesty will sometimes have her breakfast served and pass a portion of the morning. The lady's dressing-room is on the top floor, and is furnished with a glass-covered gallery, where Her Majesty will sometimes have her breakfast served and pass a portion of the morning.
